NEW YORK — The "Follies" musical took the major share of the Broadway Theater's 26th annual Tony Awards Sunday night, winning in seven of the 11 categories. However, "Two Gentlemen of Verona" was designated as the best musical of the March 17, 1971-April 12, 1972 period. The best play honor went to "Sticks and Bones," an antiwar play anchored in the Vietnam adventure by young David Rabe, involved in his first Broadway production. Tonys for stars in drama went to Cliff Gorman of "Lenny" and Sada Thompson of "Twigs." The musical comedy stars honored were Phil Silvers of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" and Alexis Smith of "Follies."

Shareholders want bill paid

PHILADELPHIA — Two shareholders want American Telephone and Telegraph Co. to hang up on the Democratic national convention this year unless the Democrats pay their four-year-old phone bill. Mr. and Mrs. Russell Miller, of Monroeville, Pa., have filed a class action against AT&T in federal district court here in an effort to make the company more diligent in its efforts at dunning the Democrats. The suit seeks to block AT&T from servicing the convention until the Democrats cough up the estimated $1.8 million they owe the phone company.

Expanded Euromart supported

PARIS — French voters gave the government a 2-1 show of support Sunday in a referendum approving enlargement of the European Economic Community (EEC) to include Britain, Denmark, Ireland and Norway. Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas claimed the election a victory for the government of President Georges Pompidou. Interior Minister Raymond Marcellin said the final tally showed 15,247 valid ballots were cast, 67.86 per cent in favor of the enlarged EEC and 32.14 per cent against. In addition, a total of 39.64 per cent of the electorate abstained from voting at all on the issue.

Red Chinese visit Memphis

MEMPHIS — The coach of the touring Chinese table tennis team said Sunday "there will be more people-to-people exchanges" between China and the United States. Relaxing on the lawn of a southern plantation, 31-year-old Chang Hsieh-Lin said, "We have received a warm reception and hospitality from the people of Memphis. When we were in school, we heard about the Mississippi River. Yesterday we saw it." Cahing, who works in a tool plant, said he was "vitaly interested" during visits the team made earlier in the day to a nuclear reactor parts factory and a soybean processing plant.

Brandt suffers setback

BONN — West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's "Ostpolitik" of conciliation with Eastern Europe suffered a major setback Sunday in a state legislative election that became a referendum on his federal policies. The opposition Christian Democratic party easily triumphed in the anticipated record vote in the southern state of Baden-Wuerttemberg. Their victory with a projected 53 per cent of the vote endangered the already slim possibility that the federal Parliament next month will ratify Brandt's nonaggression treaties with the Soviet Union and Poland. Brandt's Social Democrat party won 38 per cent of the vote.

Astronauts returning home

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI)—Apollo 16 astronauts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. blasted off from the moon Sunday night, ending a record-breaking stay that may force scientists to rewrite their theories about the origins of the lunar highlands.

While a camera mounted on their trusty lunar rover televised the event to earth, the landing craft Orion, its ascent engine generating 3,500 pounds of thrust, hurled Young and Duke into lunar orbit after nearly three days among the Descartes Mountains.

The remote-controlled television camera beamed back clear pictures of debris shooting into the air as the top half of the lander blasted free and headed upward. The camera followed the astronauts for much of their flight until they reached moon orbit seven minutes after blasting off at 8:26 p.m. EST.

"Very good, Houston --on time," Duke told mission controllers as he and Young soared into a preliminary orbit an estimated 10 miles above the dusty surface.

Scheduled about two hours later was rendezvous and docking with the command ship Casper, piloted by Thomas K. "Ken" Mattingly II, who had been taking photographs and mapping the surface from a little more than 60 miles altitude.

Young and Duke had spent 71 hours and 2 minutes on the lunar surface, exceeding the previous record set by Apollo 15 last summer by a little more than four hours. They also stowed a record 245 pounds of lunar rocks and soil samples aboard Orion, 50 pounds over their goal.

But more important, geologists in Houston said the Apollo 16 explorers may well have recovered rocks containing fragments conceivably dating back close to the very creation of the moon an estimated 4.5 billion years ago. Mission Control sent Young and Duke a "great, big 'outstanding'" for their labors.

Before they finished, the two explorers had peered into the deepest lunar crater ever seen, found the strongest magnetic field ever measured on the moon and sampled soil shielded from the sun's rays since antiquity.

They also stowed a record 245 pounds of lunar rocks and soil samples aboard Orion —50 pounds more than their goal. After hasty calculations, Mission Control cleared them to take off with their excess baggage.

And although their lunar rover, back in full operation from Saturday's near breakdown, failed to match the pioneering Apollo 15 rover's distance record of 17.3 miles traveled, it set a speed record of 11 miles an hour as it bounced over rocks and craters on the way back from yawning North Crater 3.2 miles north of their landing site on Cayley Plains.

Young and Duke also beat the Apollo 15 record for total time spent exploring the dusty surface. With three moonwalks, they recorded a total of 20 hours and 15 minutes outside the Orion. Their Saturday walk was a record for the longest single excursion, 7 hours, 23 minutes.

On his 49th revolution around the moon, Mattingly successfully fired Casper's main engine to adjust the plane of his orbit for the rendezvous.

The linked-up Apollo 16 spacecraft is to hurl the astronauts out of the moon's gravitational pull at 9:16 p.m. today and put them on course for a splashdown in the Pacific, about 1,500 miles south of Honolulu, at 2:44 p.m. Thursday, more than 24 hours early.

Division base camp captured by enemy

SAIGON (UPI)—North Vietnamese troops and tanks Monday overran a South Vietnamese division base camp at Tan Canh, 280 miles north of Saigon in the central Highlands, field reports said.

The reports said Communist artillery knocked out the tactical operations center at the base and defenders fled when the communications with the outside were cut off.

North Vietnamese tanks were reported inside the Tan Canh compound at dawn today. The base was the forward headquarters of the South Vietnamese 22nd infantry division.

The base was overrun despite heavy American air strikes which reportedly knocked out nine of 20 North Vietnamese tanks spotted moving toward the base.

The attack Sunday on Tan Canh and the nearby district headquarters at Dak To was reported to be the beginning of the long awaited Communist offensive in the highlands.

In the air war, U.S. B52s and smaller tactical jet-bombers blasted Communist positions around the embattled provincial capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon. Defenders who have held the town for 17 days fought off another Communist attack Sunday.

The U.S. Command said one U.S. Air Force

F4 Phantom jet was shot down off the North Vietnamese port of Dong Hoi, 37 miles north of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) separating the two countries, and that the two crewmen were rescued by helicopters after they bailed out over the South China Sea. North Vietnam claimed two U.S. jets shot down Sunday.

UPI reporter Matt Pranjola said roads to Tan Canh and Dak To were cut and North Vietnamese gunners Sunday shot down two South Vietnamese helicopters and drove off an American helicopter trying to land.

The U.S. Command ordered six more waves of giant B52 bombers to hit suspected Communist troop positions and staging areas in the Tan Canh area overnight, spokesmen said.

South Vietnamese spokesmen said government air force planes knocked out two Communist tanks only half a mile east of An Loc which has been under siege since April 7.

The U.S. Command also reported three overnight B52 raids within sight of besieged artillery base Bastogne, 10 miles southwest of the former imperial capital of Hue. A fourth strike was made further west between Bastogne and the A Shau valley sanctuary near the Laotian border. It was designed to cut off more infiltration by Communists toward Hue, spokesmen said.

McGovern, Humphrey top choices for two primaries

By United Press International

With two days to go, Sen. George S. McGovern was rated a strong favorite Sunday in the Massachusetts Democratic presidential primary and given a good chance to run second in the Pennsylvania race that Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is expected to win.

The liberal Americans for Democratic Action (ADA) endorsed McGovern.

The Boston Globe said its latest poll gave McGovern 43 per cent; Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, of neighboring Maine, 19; and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, 14.

It was a dramatic leap in the poll in two months for McGovern, who got all 17 delegate votes of his native South Dakota during the weekend. The Globe said that in February Muskie had 46, Humphrey 15 and McGovern 11.

Noting a "sharp erosion" of Muskie's support, the Philadelphia Bulletin said that only 24

Democratic county chairmen still support Muskie, as opposed to the 44-49 Gov. Milton Shapp said were supporting him in January. Of the 67, 18 were backing Humphrey, 23 were neutral or undecided, I refused comment and 1 leaned to Humphrey.

The Washington Star said that a surprising development of the last few days in Pennsylvania has been that McGovern might emerge stronger there Tuesday than expected, and the New York Times said both McGovern and Gov. George C. Wallace, according to the professionals, are threats to Muskie's expected second-place finish.

Muskie called off an 11th hour visit to Massachusetts to concentrate, as he has done since McGovern won the Wisconsin primary earlier in the month, on Pennsylvania. His wife Jane campaigned in Massachusetts.

McGovern, who got South

Dakota's Democratic support without opposition, campaigned in Massachusetts, where he has been concentrating since Wisconsin, at Worcester and Springfield.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, speaking on a network news panel, said the Vietnam war is "tearing this country apart" and urged that the United States resume the Paris peace negotiations and take the war to the U. N. Security Council.

"I want to leave no stone unturned," the former vice president said, in seeking an end to the war.

Humphrey also charged that the Nixon administration is shifting the tax burden from the corporations to working families. He said families paid 21 per cent of the tax bill and corporations 20 per cent in 1969, but that the family share had gone up to 29 per cent while that from corporations had fallen to 16 per cent.

Senators renew antiwar protest

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Stirred by the bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong, war critics in the Senate began another drive this week to cut off funds for the Vietnam War by a fixed deadline.

A State Department spending authorization bill, containing the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's controversial amendment setting a Dec. 31, 1972, termination date for U. S. involvement in Indochina combat, was tentatively scheduled for floor action Wednesday or Thursday.

In the House, where the Foreign Affairs Committee is under injunction to draft an antiwar amendment as a result of action by the Democratic caucus last week, a vote is scheduled Wednesday on a resolution by Rep. Bella M. Abzug, D-N. Y., directing the administration to furnish detailed reports on troop strength, the target date for completion of the Vietnamization program and other information about the war in Indochina.

Opposed by the administration on grounds it would expose sensitive information to the enemy, the measure is expected to be defeated, but will provide the House with a forum for debate on the war.

Legislator argues system not needed

TIRAC delays sewerage plan vote

Ottaway News Service

PORT JERVIS, N.Y. — The Tocks Island Regional Advisory Council (TIRAC) Saturday tabled two resolutions dealing with sewage control systems after a Middletown man argued that the projects were unneeded and too expensive.

John D. Bright, an attorney who sits on the TIRAC board as an Orange County representative, told a meeting of the group here that the cost of the proposed $362 million sewage system that would loop the Tocks Island area will even be higher than originally proposed.

Bright claimed that except in isolated locations, the seven county, three state area affected by Tocks "has no need for a sewage system. There is no health menace, no serious pollution, no danger of epidemics," Bright said.

After others at the meeting said that the Delaware River Basin Commission had been "unfair" "evasive" in its dealings with residents, TIRAC also proposed sending copies of Bright's 21-point position paper to the seven county legislatures affected for their official action.

The Tocks Island dam project has been held up for more than a year by the federal Council of Environmental Quality which has asked assurances from New York that it will dry up all sources of pollution in Sullivan County, upstream from the planned 37 mile reservoir that will stretch from Stroudsburg to Port Jervis.

But Bright argued that "all so called proof" of pollution and eutrophication in the reservoir is "speculation". He claimed there can be no proof until the reservoir exists.

He also said that local residents will be taxed for the project but will gain little benefit in return.

"Lack of pollution in the reservoir will benefit only two groups, visitors to the proposed national park who use the lake for recreation and the downstream cities and communities who will use the dam as a source of water."

TIRAC was organized to provide a regional voice on state and federal levels for the local governments in the Tocks area, according to Thomas Klock, the units director secretary.

Sewerage system at issue

DRBC blasts Tocks Dam opponent

TRENTON, N.J. — James F. Wright, executive director of the Delaware River Basin Commission, has labeled opposition by an Orange County (N.Y.) legislator to the Tocks project as "largely based on misinformation."

Orange County received a report by county legislator John D. Bright, proposing the county "formally oppose any further continuation" of the Tocks Island proposal.

Henry G. Parry, chairman of the Orange County legislature, asked the Monroe County Commissioners recently for a pro or con statement on the dam.

Bright called for a re-examination of the proposed "mammoth sewer system" designed to provide rapid eutrophication, according to the DRBC.

He figures the total cost of the project, extending some 50 miles, would be "close or in excess to" $1 billion. The DRBC uses $362 million as a base figure.

Bright cited four reasons why the dam "will be of no or at least very little" use for flood control, including his belief the reservoir isn't designed "to be held at low water level" to store possible floodwaters.

The project, charged Bright, "is a perfect example of bureaucracy solving a problem by imposing an astronomical cost on helpless taxpayers." Bright contends cities downstream from the reservoir haven't been charged ed their proper share.

Wright defends the DRBC's position by claiming Bright's paper could not be taken "seriously" by "even adamant foes of the Tocks Island reservoir project."

"The project is a sound one, as it was when first proposed a decade ago," rebuts Wright, and claims the Orange County legislator "makes the erroneous statement" the project was designed solely for flood control.

"No lake remains at the same level at all times," Wright replied, "and a check of the experience at the nation's major reservoirs will bear out that they are used highly successfully for recreation. Is it not curious that the National Park service . . . is not concerned with this point?"

Wright earlier called Bright's statement that the dam "will be of little or no flood control use" "preposterous," and pointed out the president's Council sees "no significant environmental problems."

"In summary," wrote Wright, "it is a great disappointment that an elected official would prepare and distribute as formal comments and recommendations a paper of nearly 2,000 words on a subject reflecting such little understanding and information."

Wright "sincerely" urged Bright seek "expertise available to you" before accepting "superficial opinions."

Wave of protest in full swing

By United Press International

One week after the U.S. bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong, the strongest wave of antiwar protest since the Cambodian invasion still appeared to be in full swing Sunday. More demonstrations, strikes and antiwar activities were being planned.

About 80 demonstrators from Philadelphia gathered at the entrance to the U.S. Navy Pier at Leonardo, N.J., and said they planned to try to block the sailing of a Navy ammunition ship reportedly bound for Vietnam. Police said 18 of the demonstrators were arrested when they tried to scale a fence and get onto the pier.

A women's march was planned in the Chicago suburb of Evanston, Ill., Sunday before an antiwar rally at Northwestern University. Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Ill., said in remarks prepared for the rally that it would take more than antiwar demonstrations to end the war. "It will take votes," Mikva said, urging election of antiwar candidates next November.

In New York, the Student Mobilization Committee hosted an Emergency National Student Antiwar Conference at New York University to formulate plans for further action. A student strike committee at Columbia University was meeting Sunday to decide whether it would continue a strike there. Columbia President William McGill, in announcing cancellation of classes Friday, said studies would resume today.

DEMOCRATS

Don't waste your vote . . .

There's too much at stake this year to waste your vote by staying home or letting the bosses choose the Democratic candidate for president. Because Senator George McGovern led the fight for party reform and delegate selection, this year you can elect the majority of delegates and know who they support.

Senator George McGovern has proven over and over again in the Senate and in the primaries that he has the guts, leadership, honesty and vote getting power to unite the Democrats and win in 1972. He is determined to end wasteful government spending and force the rich and the big corporations to bear their fair share of the tax burden. He has spelled out his programs to end the war, control crime and drugs, and protect the environment.

National convention delegates

29th Senatorial District
Nineteen persons in the three-county 29th Senatorial District are candidates for the three delegate seats to the Democratic National Convention. Six of these are candidates for the two alternate seats.
The district comprises parts of Monroe, Carbon and Schuylkill counties.

Uncommitted
Harold T. Campion of Pottsville; Stephen Babichak of Sham; Lewis Davis of Minersville and James S. Clark of New Philadelphia. Eugene Schroe of Rehns and Judith E. Kerwick of Pottsville are uncommitted alternates.

Registration increases

STROUDSBURG — There are 20,870 persons registered to vote in the April 25 primary — or 865 more than were registered in the primaries a year ago.
The Democrats added 537 to out-list Republicans by 1,574. The GOP in the county can march 9,469 to the polls compared with a Democratic army of 10,983. Still, the Republicans boast 180 more voters than 1971 figures.
Although statistics may not be relevant until both parties clash for a presidential candidate, district voting in the primaries shows Democrats leading registration in 26 of Monroe County's 35 voting districts.

Republicans to select two convention delegates

Voters in the Republican primary will have to elect two delegates and two alternate delegates to the Republican National Convention.
The Republican delegates are chosen from the 10th Congressional District comprising eight counties. The counties are Monroe, Pike, Wayne, Lackawanna, Susquehanna, Wyoming, Bradford and Tioga.
Delegates are James P.T. Jennings of 343 Garden St., Clarks Green; Thomas E. Wilcox of 55 Pearl St., Wellbore and Garfield G.

Thomas of 20 Washington St., Carbondale.
The two alternate delegates who have no opposition are Carmel Siriani of Hop Bottom and William Bruce Van Deusen of Scranton.
Republicans were also to select one member each for the Republican State Committee from the 20th and 29th Senatorial District. There are no candidates, however. James Joseph of Stroudsburg was to have been a candidate but failed to file his petition with the Pennsylvania Election Bureau in Harrisburg.

Pocono cleanup everyone's affair

During Environmental Awareness Week, which ended Sunday, The Record published several photographs of litter and scabrous eyesores dotting the Pocono area.

Only a few such photographs were selected. We could have printed many, many more. And most of the trash found out by our roving photographers was on private property alongside the area's busier thoroughfares.

The American conviction is that we can do pretty much what we please with our property. Apparently, many people in the Poconos feel that way, for their property in many cases is so trash littered as to evoke a universal cry should public lands be maintained in the same way.

In our boroughs, those property owners would be told to clean up immediately, for local health organizations, notably the East Stroudsburg board, is convinced the right of private property does not include the right of negligence, the right to create a nuisance that offends or endangers the public as a whole.

It's too bad the county governments don't have a similar board with a similar viewpoint. The piles of junk and the tumbledown buildings strung alongside rural roadways — where, presumably, the tourists we are so anxious to lure to the Poconos (along with their money) — is enough to turn the strongest stomach, provided its owner is a sensitive enough individual.

Many such scenes were observed near restaurants and night spots catering to the tourist. You might alibi for the owners by claiming it was their customers who made the mess. True, but if a person is anxious to sell customers his wares, he should be as anxious to clean up the mess customers made with the end product of those wares — bottles, cans, wrappers and bags.

It's not enough to have beautiful resorts and sparkling vistas. People look down, too. We ought to see to it the view is as attractive in the foreground as in the hazy distance.

They fit together

About the same time that Ralph Reppert, the new executive director of the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, was telling members negotiations were continuing with a Finland firm to establish a prefabricated home plant here, Dr. Walter E. Brown, new Vocational-Technical High School director, was saying, "the most important thing is vocational education pulls in industry."

It was a timely concurrence, because it reinforced our contention that the single most important facet that interests industry about a community is the quality and quantity of its labor pool. It does little good for an industry to locate in one area if it has to import its labor force from another.

Looked at another way, it does little good for a community for an industry to locate there if the created jobs can't be filled by local people. And that's where Vo-Tech comes in.

Says Dr. Brown, "We'll directly contribute to help the local factories better themselves . . . vocational education is a total community commitment."

We like Dr. Brown's attitude. We like his confidence in the area (the school has "tremendous potential"). And we wish him success in his position, because success for him will be success for Monroe County and its communities . . . and its young people.

Coin corner

More phony coins

By ROBERT SVENSSON

For some reason or other a lot of people interested in coins don't like to admit that such a thing as counterfeits exist.

They do exist. And more of them seem to be popping up all the time.

With the price of gold in orbit, it's not hard to understand why the "easy buck" boys are keeping busy. Some of the gold counterfeiters they are turning out are pretty good. Quite a few dealers have been taken in by the phonies.

Write to Hancock, care of the American Numismatic Association, P.O. Box 2366, Colorado Springs, Colo. 80901. And while you are at it, think about joining this very essential organization.

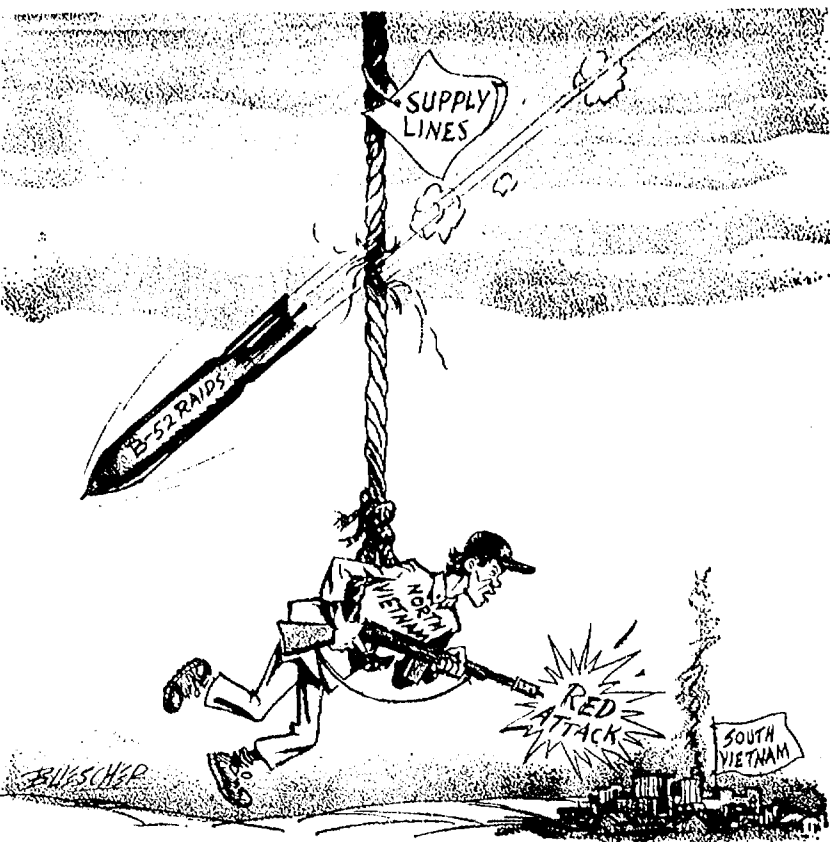

At the moment the WVV has an option on a small piece of land near the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts and it is hoping to build before 1975. This is not the best site in Washington, as the elephantine JFK Center draws everything for miles around, including the formerly imposing Lincoln Memorial.

Where, in this city of 10,000 statues, is there a statue, or even plans for a statue, honoring the troops of the Vietnam War? WVV Commander Jeremy Bonkers was saying to me the other day, "If we're not careful, the Vietnam War will be as forgotten as the Korean War. I can't find any statues to that around here, either."

In fact, we're hoping to use some obsolete B-52 parts in the construction and we'll have bronze-cast tanks at each doorway. The whole thing will be done in good taste, utilizing the best of olive drab paints."

A curator for the museum has not yet been appointed, although the WVV hopes to persuade a retired Army Ordnance officer to take the post. A man like that would be familiar with the equipment which would form many of the exhibits. I asked if they have anyone now in Vietnam buying surplus military equipment as it becomes available.

Hanoi goal

WHAT HANOI IS AFTER. The Vietnamese offensive has a far bigger objective than the Tet offensive four years ago. The goal of the 1968 Tet campaign was to conquer South Vietnam. It failed. The goal this time is to take over all of Indochina.

This is the judgment of the most experienced Vietnam observers in Saigon and in Washington.

Hanoi is mounting more men, more weapons, more firepower than ever. It is committing nearly all of its regular army and it is leaving its own country exposed.

It is a winner-take-all gamble.

NIXON-TRUDEAU SUMMIT EMPTY. It produced good words and a show of good intention, but little else. U.S.-Canadian economic policies are in conflict and will improve only very slowly.

The Great Lakes cleanup agreement is also just another promise after 60 years of unkept promises.

The agreement contains nothing which each side hasn't already pledged to do — but hasn't.

Every one of the Great Lakes — Superior, Michigan, Huron, Erie and Ontario — is more polluted than it was five years ago.

THE WHOLE SAVE-THE-ENVIRONMENT CRUSADE is slowing down. Two years ago nearly everybody was saying whatever is needed must be done.

Now the big ecological backlash is setting in. It isn't just industry which is worried about high costs. Organized labor is worried about jobs if antipollution standards shut down plants. The poor tend to view the ecology movement as a middle-class ploy which has little in it for them.

Nixon himself is leading the slowdown. "We are not going to allow the environmental issue," he warns, "to destroy the industrial system that made this the great country it is."

The task is to find a practical middle course between the doomsayers and the Washington — The Vietnamese War Veterans (known as the WVV, of course) are going ahead with their plans for a Vietnamese War Museum despite a groundswell of apathy on the subject. The WVV feels, and not without some basis, that the war that will soon pass into history is in danger of being neglected as an inspiring American achievement.

Legislature lacks control

HARRISBURG — It was James Madison, the man considered by many as the "Father" of the American Constitutional System, who said:

"The greatest weapon in the hands of the legislature is its control over the executive's purse."

And nothing points it up more dramatically than the recent report of the Governor's Task Force on Management.

Because, the way State Representative Franklin Kury, Northumberland County, and several other budget conscious members of the House Democratic caucus see it, the report was really a massive indictment of the Legislature's weakness and inability to exercise its constitutional power over the executive.

"More than anything else, the study points up the vital need for a permanent, legislative auditing program responsible for overseeing all Commonwealth expenditures in relation to performance," says Mr. Kury, principle advocate of legislation now on the House calendar that would create a "Legislative Program and Performance Audit Committee."

He and another key sponsor of the bill, Representative Ray Hovis, York County, contend that it was the theory of the founding fathers of this country that the legislature, as a co-equal branch of government — whether at the federal or the state level — should have the power of "checks and balances" over the executive in budgetary spending.

"Yet, from the findings of the Governor's task force, it has become obvious that we in Pennsylvania have been using this power only feebly and intermittently, if at all," Messrs. Kury and Hovis maintain. "The appropriations process, whereby the Legislature enacts a budget, is really more of a ritual than any examination of the need for money or of the efficiency with which previously appropriated money has been spent."

"Year after year, members of the House and Senate are asked to vote for appropriations based on information almost entirely from the departments, agencies and commissions of state which are seeking the money in the first place."

Commission found
"The kind of things that the Commission found are the things which the legislature should be finding annually as it examines the budget and prepares for each year's appropriation," Mr. Kury insists, adding:

"And the legislative auditing bill (HB358) can give the Legislature that ability. The purpose of this bill is to create within the Legislature a mechanism which would do, on a continuing basis, what the Governor's Commission has done on a 'one-shot' basis. The idea of the Governor in creating the task force in the first place was to instill the same concepts of quality control over spending in state government that now exist in business. House Bill 358 would make it an on-going process."

Supporters of the legislative audit program point to ample precedent for the concept. The state of Florida, for example, has some 170 full-time certified public accountants working on its legislative performance audit staff. And New York, Washington, Hawaii and Wisconsin have also started legislative auditing programs.

"The Governor's Management Task Force has pointed the direction we must take," Representative Kury contends. "It has found much duplication that can be eliminated. It has shown where money is being spent foolishly. And it has shown us where money is being wasted."

New look at Nixon

A genuinely interesting book on Richard Nixon has at last been published. It is, I suppose, not surprising that it has taken so long for one to appear. For one thing, Nixon is a private person to an exaggerated degree; for another, most of the people who do write books are intellectuals, and, therefore, usually liberals, and, again therefore, unable to achieve the detachment necessary to write interestingly about Nixon. Thus, during this election year, we will have the usual spate of hate-Nixon books by people like Gore Vidal and Philip Roth. These reek of in-group snobbery; their remote ancestor was Arthur Schlesinger Jr.'s "Kennedy or Nixon" in 1960.

But — surprise! — Bruce Mazlish's "In Search of Nixon" (Basic Books), while far from pro-Nixon, does achieve a detachment that allows Mazlish to bring his intelligence to bear and present a portrait the complexity of which has the feel of truth.

Mazlish is a professor of history at MIT, and, on the evidence of the book, a liberal, but he is also exploring a relatively new mode of biography, the "psychohistory."

This is a tricky business, and previous attempts have not been all that reassuring. The investigator studies all of the evidence he can get his hands on, particularly the subject's earliest years, and — here is where extreme tact is called for — he tries to bring to bear some of the insights of psychoanalysis. Obviously, the charlatan or the partisan could have a field day. Though Freud, using this approach, produced a classic study of Leonardo, his book on Moses is eccentric; and when, in old age, he collaborated with William Bullitt in applying the method to Woodrow Wilson, he laid a large egg.

Mazlish's book, however, is intellectually responsible, wide reading, and at times even moving. While many of his points necessarily remain debatable, he may have penetrated far closer to the real Nixon than any writer has so far.

The "Psychobiography" of Nixon is complex, but, in brief, Mazlish views Nixon as divided emotionally between the contradictory personalities of his parents. Nixon is "torn between his mother's dislike of warfare and his father's sharp competitiveness." It is thus "extremely ambivalent about his aggressive impulses." And he "is a man haunted by his father's failure" and driven to avoid that failure for himself and to redeem it for his parent.

Using these hypotheses, Mazlish is able to shed a good deal of light on different features of Nixon's behavior. Often, for example, Nixon's rhetoric and policies seem contradictory. Even the policies themselves do not, sometimes, seem altogether consistent. But Mazlish views them as psychologically consistent. Thus the Hannah Nixon component can speak of a "generation of peace" and even of a world without war. The Hannah Nixon component is the moralistic one, left behind much of the rhetoric; and also the Nixon who disapproves of his own aggressive impulses: "Now I don't say this bitterly," said most gloweringly the Frank Nixon component is competitive, and can strike back hard, whether at the press or in Cambodia or Quang Tri province.

As Mazlish shows, however, Nixon has drawn a good deal of strength from these contradictory components. His struggle to bring them under control has produced that famous self-discipline, an inner resilience which has deepened over the years and been tempered by adversity. It is not the least of the qualities that has carried him to the White House.

"There is much," concludes Mazlish, "to applaud in the 37th President of the United States." Would anyone else in the history department at MIT concede as much?

Lester Coleman, M.D.

Health questions

What would bring on a sudden loss of hair in a small patch?

This happens to me about twice a year. After a few weeks the hair grows in again. I just can't understand it.

Mr. J. R., Del.

Dear Mr. R.:
This condition is known as "alopecia areata," just as you describe, the hair suddenly begins to fall out from the scalp in one or more small patches.

It is generally accepted that emotional stress and tension play an important role in the production of this condition. If left alone, the hair begins to grow back in six or eight months.

A number of drugs have been tried to help the regrowth of the hair. None have been very effective.

Cortisone has been tried by mouth and by injection. The regrowth of hair has not seemed to be significantly changed by the use of these hormones.

It takes patience and perhaps some counseling to relieve the basic anxiety which is thought to be responsible for these repeated episodes.

Speaking of your health . . . Tiny turtles should not be brought into the home as children's pets. They may be carriers of salmonella infection and thus the danger is too great for the pleasure they bring.

Youth concert to open National Music Week

EAST STROUDSBURG — To open National Music Week which will run from May 7 to 14, the Music Study Club of the Stroudsburgs will present the Lancaster County Youth Symphony in a concert at East Stroudsburg High School at 8 p.m. on May 7.

The 70 young people under the direction of Prof. Otis Kitchen, teacher at Elizabethtown College and conductor of the Elizabethtown College Community Symphony, are ninth to twelfth graders in Lancaster's schools.

They have received wide acclaim from the Curtis String Quartette with whom they worked at Symphony Music Camp for teen-age musicians and a variety of awards including National Music Week awards.

The local concert is also being sponsored by the Pocono Junior and Juvenile Music Clubs who are preparing posters announcing the week's activities.

Mrs. Jack Manchester, president of the Music Study Club of the Stroudsburgs and committees from the three clubs are working on a patron's ticket list as well as regular admission and student tickets. Tickets are now on sale at $5 for patrons, $1.50 for adults and 75 cents for students.

During Music Week, the club will also present a concert at 8 p.m. on May 9 at Pinebrook Junior College featuring the theme, "New Horizons with Pennsylvania Composers."

Area composer to play Pauline Fox, local composer, pianist and organist, will present her own composition for organ and a trio on "Once to Every Man and Nation" with Eleanor Field Holden, organ, and Norman Fox, tenor.

Also during the May 9 concert, performances will be given by the Shawnee Choir, the Rev. David Watkins, the Rev. Carl C. Cassell and the Folk Group of Young People. Gladys Fisher, past state president of the National Federation of Music Clubs, will play her own cello composition. In addition, the Music Study Club Chorus will include two of her numbers with Eleanor Holden directing and Lucy Quig at the piano.

The Monroe County Garden Club is preparing the Pennsylvania symbolism decor for the program.

Other Music Week activities include: May 7, a performance by students of Olga Weidlich at the Salem Church of Gilbert at 2:15 p.m.; and a performance by the students of Eleanor Bender at the Blairstown United Methodist Church at 2 p.m.; May 8, a piano recital by Janet Marsh at Stroud Mansion at 7:45 p.m.; and May 11 and 12, dance programs at East Stroudsburg State College at 8 p.m. on both nights.

Additional activities later in the week will be: May 12, a performance by the students of Eleanor Bender at East Stroudsburg at 8 p.m.; May 14, the Pocono Juvenile Club Mother's Day Tea and program at 1:30 p.m. at the United Church of Christ in Stroudsburg; and, on the same day, a performance by the Pocono Boys Choir at East Stroudsburg State College with K. Bernard Schade conducting.

During the week-long celebration, programs will also be presented at Pleasant Valley Manor, Laurel Manor, the Conqueror's Club and for a variety of other groups and organizations.

Tuna has two things going for it: (1) there's always some tuna in the cupboard and (2) kids don't regard tuna as fish.

If you're a calorie-counter (or cholesterol-watcher), tuna has a lot more to recommend it. A two-serving can of water-packed tuna is only 240 calories — 120 calories a serving — less than half the calories of the steak or hamburger.

Of course, you must choose the water-packed-type tuna to reap those low-fat, low-calorie advantages. The same brand tuna that is only 240 calories in the water-packed version mounts to 510 calories when it's packed in oil. Cast a "fishy" eye at any so-called "diet" recipes that suggest oil-packed tuna!

Here's an uncanny casserole dish that's low-cost, low-calorie, low-cholesterol and low-work. You toss it all together in a baking dish and your oven turns it into a sophisticated Italian entree that perfumes the air with bubbling tomatoes and cheese. But be sure the tuna is water-packed (240 calories) instead of oil-packed (510 calories per can!).

Slim Gourmet Tuna Italiano

1. tablespoon oil
1. onion, sliced
2. cloves garlic, minced
2. small eggplants, cut in cubes
1. can (1 pound) Italian-style tomatoes
2. teaspoons dried oregano or basil
1. teaspoon salt
1. teaspoon pepper
2. cans (6 1/2 ounces each) water-packed tuna (or 1 large can)
5. tablespoons grated Romano or Parmesan cheese

Heat the oil in a nonstick skillet (one tablespoon is all you need!). Sauté the onion and garlic until soft. Add the eggplant, tomatoes, oregano, salt and pepper. Cover and simmer over low heat for 30 minutes.

Drain the tuna and fork-flake into chunks in the bottom of a shallow two-quart baking dish. Spoon the tomato-eggplant mixture on top of the tuna and sprinkle with the cheese. Bake in a preheated 250-degree oven for 30 minutes. Serves four, 275 calories per serving.

Here's another tuna trick:

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

DELPHI, Greece — We finally got the idea that the Oracle at Delphi was trying to tell us something — like "go home and work out your own problems" when the clouds caught us up. We'd had a bright and beautiful drive along the Peloponnesian coast with its vineyards, orchards and green fields.

Crossing by ferry from Aegion to Itea, we were driven inside by the cool wind and our subsequent bridge game drew kiitzers in four languages — and when we added a lively bizouka serenader, we resorted to sign language.

However, we all emerged to watch Mount Parnassus, legendary home of the gods, appear across the water, white-crowned and majestic, dwarfing the village where the ferryboat docked and Delphi itself under its towering cliffs called "The Shining Ones."

But that's the last we saw of Parnassus. Spiraling our way to the ultra-modern hotel above the picturesque village — a sort of perpendicular New Hope with splendid craft shops in its stairway streets, we visited the Castilian Spring where pilgrims of centuries, from prehistoric times until Emperor Theodosius put an end to the whole thing in 381 A.D., had paused to cleanse themselves before consulting the oracle Pythia.

The museum is splendid. It's best-known work is probably the bronze Charioteer (478 B.C.). We started at the Temple of Athena, but then the clouds rolled down from the heights and the mists rose, gradually veiling the great vistas of mountains and sea and two rivers of olive trees flowing down the slopes and joining to flow on down to the sea.

What we lost in majestic vistas, we gained in mystery as we climbed the Sacred Way, past the treasure houses and temples, the Tripod where sacrifices were made — the sanctuary of earth. Here, slaves were first freed, their names inscribed on the wall which you can still touch and feel.

Here, Apollo overcame the Earth Mother, representing the triumph of man's spirit over his animal self — the forgiveness of sins — and over the Temple of Apollo the famous inscription "Know Thyself." We got a chance to do just that as we clambered through the mists, taking individual shelters under the almond trees when the rain grew heavy, with solitude alternating with companionship as we wandered upward ever upward to the stadium and the very base of the cliffs.

We also had a chance, as we climbed, for an eye-level view of the wild flowers of Greece — which has 6,000 varieties — aromatic, sweet and sharp in the gentle rain.

We also had a chance to get to know each other better. On this four-day classical tour of Greece, the 30 people on the trip, starting as 30 hard-shelled seeds wrapped in their individual sheaths, had flowered into personalities, exchanging impressions, opinions, experiences and a general feeling of good will.

The bridge foursome from the Poconos, the two boys from Syracuse — architecture students on a term abroad studying in London who helped us over rocks and furnished umbrellas and bright conversation, the health ed teacher from Vassar, the German doctor and his pretty wife, the French couple with a three-year-old child so well-behaved that even the fondest grandmother couldn't boast, the Swiss professor of art, the pretty young archaeologist who was our guide...maybe that was our message from the Oracle: "Know each other too."

Camping trailer

There is nothing in this world any more appealing than an ad for a camping trailer. It pictures an hysterical family of four grouped around a fire on a deserted beach. The kids are carrying wood and playing Frisbee. The family dog is chasing the family rabbit (in just not lust). And Daddy (looking like Mark Trail) is whittling the heads of four Presidents out of an old tree trunk.

Well, I am here to tell you that the family who camps together gets cramps together.

We have been camping for seven years and we have yet to have an evening where we all go to bed speaking to one another. The problem has remained the same for the past seven years: parking the trailer.

Some trailer parks have "pull in" parking spaces. This is for marriages that cannot stand too much strain. For the rest of us there is the trailer park where you have to back in the trailer, being careful to line up evenly with the picnic table, the water and sewer hook-ups.

To assist my husband with this task, there are two large mirrors on either side of the car, three children, one adult (a high school graduate) and a barking dog. Before I record our dialogue I will only comment, "You never know what you have married until you have seen him back up a 24-foot travel trailer into a spot between two trees."

Helpers: "Turn your wheels."

Husband: "Which way?"

Helpers: "That way."

Husband: "Which way is THAT way. I don't have eyes in the back of my head. You have to say right or left."

Husband: "Make up your mind. And which wheels right, the car or the trailer?"

Helpers: "Back up. Now stop. Stop. STOP! Why didn't you stop?"

Husband: "I couldn't hear you with the dog barking and in all this rain."

Helpers: "It isn't raining. You hit the water connection."

Husband: "I'll pull up and back in again. Now, for crying out loud, guide me."

Helpers: (waving madly)

Husband: "Why are you directing me in this way?"

Helpers: "We weren't. We were just waving to our neighbors."

Husband: "It's a crummy time to get friendly. Why don't you wait till I'm parked."

Helpers: "We'd better be friendly now. You just backed into their tent. You know the trouble with you . . . etc., etc., etc."

We should have learned something from the pioneers. They had the entire west to park in and they pulled their wagons into a circle.

Teen Forum

Girls hang around

By Jean Adams

SMOKE RING: (Q.) I think my mother has found out that I smoke. I'm afraid of what she may do. I can't quit because I wouldn't be accepted by the girls I hang around with.

A: I have to be, because being with them means I am popular. If I quit I'd be back to being a nobody. What should I do? I am 15.

Smoky the Girl
in Iowa.

(A.) Your values are confused. If you care more about being with a group of girls who make you smoke than you do about having a good and long and healthy life, then you have more serious problems than just being popular.

Teens today are supposed to be more individualistic than ever before — smarter, less hypocritical, more independent. Yet, in order to be popular with a small group, you say you let other girls make you smoke. Don't let them.

TIM AGAIN? (Q.) I went with Tim for nine months. Then he broke up with me. He has gone with two girls since then, but isn't going with anyone now.

The night before he broke up with the second girl, he was drunk (but not very) and he told me he thought he liked me again.

I guess I wanted to believe him, so I did. I never have stopped liking him. Besides, some people say alcohol is like a truth serum. How do I get him back?

Hoping in Kentucky

(A.) Alcohol can make boys say or do things they wouldn't otherwise say or do. And for some boys, a drink or two can make any girl look good. Consider that.

SWITCHER: (Q.) I am a boy who gets enjoyment out of wearing girls clothes.

I am not a homosexual. Also, I know that is not a "phase" I am going through, but something I really like.

I want to know: Should I tell my parents? Should I buy myself underwear and other stuff that gives me this good feeling? Or should I try to discourage my habit?

13 in Illinois

(A.) I urge you to try for No. 3 and discourage this tendency in yourself. You were created as a boy, a male, and as long as you give in to urges to be something else you are likely to be confused and unhappy and unsure of yourself. You are also likely to feel guilty and to be deeply embarrassed if you pursue this urge.

NECK, SHOULDER AND ARM COMPLAINTS

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder D.C.C.C.O.

Duly, the Doctor of Chiropractic is called upon to care for patients with neck, shoulder and arm problems, that may be called by the patient: neuritis, bursitis, neuralgia, rheumatism or sprained muscles, or even poor circulation.

The causes of these conditions are varied: spinal subluxations (displacement of one or more vertebrae which cause irritation to the nerve), spinal curvatures, postural defects, occupational stresses, etc.

In cases of this type, the Chiropractor's first concern is to find the cause of the disability through questioning the patient and giving a spinal examination. He will then adjust the spinal subluxation or distortion which caused the irritation to the nerves, thereby relieving the patient's symptoms and maintaining health.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas Franklin Snyder, Chiropractic Orthopedist, Brodheadsville, Pa. Phone 992-4787).

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	5 ♠	Pass

Opening lead—jack of diamonds.

This remarkable hand occurred in the 1968 match between Spain and Switzerland. With Bulfill and Togores North-South for Spain, the bidding went as shown.

Two clubs was Stayman and asked South to bid a four-card major if he had one. Togores happily complied with two spades, whereupon Bulfill decided there would be a good chance for a slam if South had three aces.

Accordingly, he invoked Blackwood by jumping to four notrump. But South had only two aces and the bidding died at five spades.

Had West led the ace and another club, the contract would have gone down two, assuming that East would ruff and return a heart. But West's opening lead was a diamond and Togores easily made six.

The Swiss East-West pair were naturally concerned over the outcome, for it seemed likely that at the other table their teammates would get to four spades with North as declarer — and go down against the normal lead of a singleton club by East.

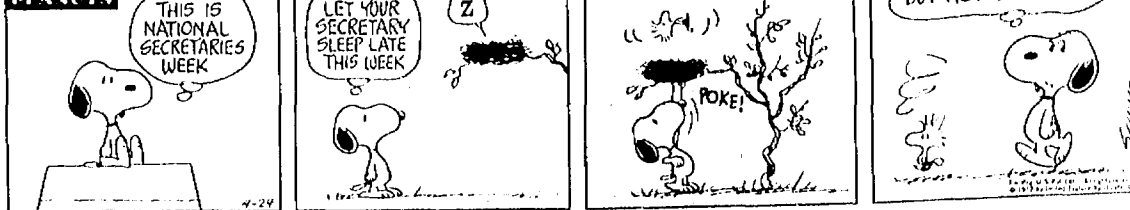

But, oddly enough their fears proved groundless when their teammates, Fenwick and Catzeffis, had a very lucky bidding misunderstanding and wound up in five clubs — which was ice cold.

The bidding went:

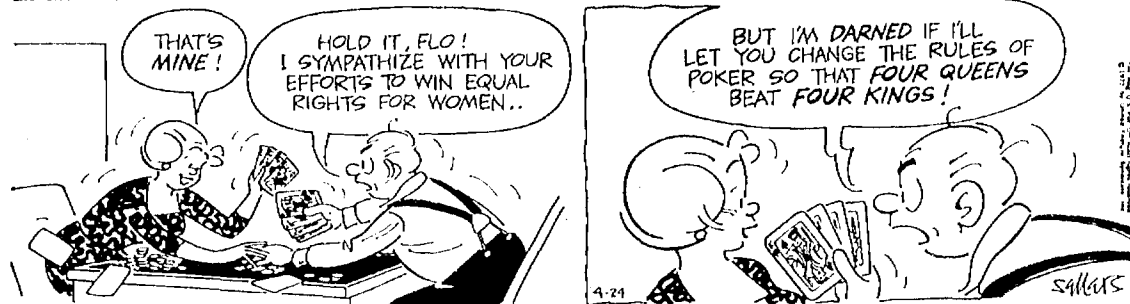

South	West	North	East
1 NT	Dble	4 ♠	Pass
5 ♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Fenwick and Catzeffis had agreed to play transfer bids opposite opening notrump bids, and North's four spade call was understood by South to be a transfer bid to clubs. South dutifully responded five clubs, which North passed, and in that way the Swiss pair arrived at the only game contract that was safe.

Biology quandry

Dear Ann Landers: Our biology teacher made a statement yesterday that sounded very strange to say the least. He said if it was absolutely necessary, a father could nurse his children. A few of us told him we couldn't understand how this was possible. He assured us it could be done. Is he right?

Curious At Mt. Abe

Dear Curious: Dr. Rodney Jamieson, Chicago internist and staff member of Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital is the medical authority for the following statement: "No way. Unless the father holds the bottle."

Dear Ann Landers: We have a 17-year-old daughter who will be going to college next year. After visiting twelve institutions of higher learning in the East, we found the same story everywhere — beautiful campuses, impressive buildings, lovely landscaping — and crummy looking students. Dirty unisex clothing; unshaven, mop-haired males; slobby, braless girls in shawls, jeans, sandals and faded hip-huggers.

Am I crazy because I don't buy that bit about "it's what's inside that counts?" It seems to me what's outside has some relation to what's inside. Manners and decent language appear to be a thing of the past, too.

These kids don't realize that many colleges and universities could not survive if it weren't for the endowment of the older generation who have given freely of their funds. I'm sure many alumni would turn over in their graves if they could get a glimpse of the students on most campuses today. Sign me —

Establishment Square

Dear Es: There is no rational defense for personal neglect, dirt, bad manners or foul language. And there's no denying it — it's more prevalent both off and on campuses than it used to be. But there is also less hypocrisy, and a stronger commitment to higher ideals. A generation that is against the Vietnam war, outspoken in behalf of equal opportunities for minority groups, dedicated to fighting pollution and saving our environment can't be all bad.

Dear Ann Landers: Three years ago I married for the second time. Both my wife and I had children from previous marriages. Our troubles can all be traced to my wife's kids who behave like animals. We also have a difficult time with her ex-husband who is a crackpot. He bribes the kids with glamorous vacations, fancy camps and expensive schools. If they disagree with him he threatens to stop paying for their psychiatric sessions. This plunges them into a state of anxiety and depression.

When I try to discipline the children they tell their father I am a sadist and he encourages them to run away from home. This upsets their mother terribly and she blames me for being too hard on them.

Frankly I think my wife should hand these kids over to their father and let them drive HIM crazy. She says she will never give them up and if she must choose between them and me, she'll have to choose them. Is there any way to keep my marriage from falling apart?

I Really Care

Dear Care: If you and your wife have not had joint counseling, I recommend it. Ask the doctor who is seeing the children to suggest someone who can help you resolve your internal problems so you can function as parents.

Dear Ann Landers: I had three ladies over for tea yesterday and on the spur of the moment I decided to say a blessing over the cake and cookies. They looked at me as if I were crazy. I realize this was out of the ordinary but I just felt like — thanking the good Lord for his generosity. Did I make a fool of myself?

Embarrassed In Ohio

Dear Em: No way. If you felt an impulse to say Grace over the cake and cookies, I see nothing to criticize. The world could use more "fools" like you.

Is not a drug? Can L.S.D. and pills open new worlds for you? Stop guessing. Get the facts in Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with 16 cents postage to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

My Dear Fellow Republicans —

The fate of the Republican Party of Monroe County, and its people, has been of great importance to me. It is for this reason that I am now urging you to elect Edward Katz as Republican Party Chairman.

Ed's service to the party extends over a period of thirty years and has been consistently dedicated and loyal. He has been a trusted lieutenant of all Republican County Chairmen under whom he has served. My husband had the greatest confidence in him and assigned to him most difficult tasks. Never was Ed found lacking. Indeed, his attitude and initiative were an inspiration to all around him.

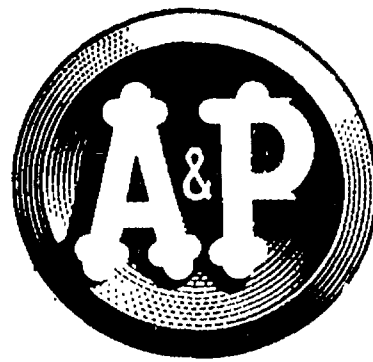

At a time so important to our party and to our community, a time when crucial decisions must be made and vital leadership is necessary, it is important that we elect the right man to lead us.

I am prepared to place my faith in Ed Katz and for the common good I ask that all of you do the same.

Write to know

The people in The Pocono Record circulation area have a "Write to Know" — and The Record will try to provide the answers in the "Write to Know" column. The column, designed to answer any questions or solve any problems (consumer, government or anything else) will appear every Monday on the first page of the second section. Send all questions to "Write to Know," The Pocono Record, 511 Lenox St., Stroudsburg, Pa. 18360. Questions should be in writing and signed. No telephone calls, please.

Q. — I recently took my television set to a local television repair shop to have it fixed. After having to wait several weeks, the set was returned to us, along with a $45 bill. It still didn't work when we got it home. I took the set back and was told another part needed to be replaced at an additional expense of $25. The set still did not work. I then took the set to a second shop and it was fixed in a short time for only $10. What can be done about the first television repair shop?

A.N., Stroudsburg

A. — Since you did not supply us with the name of the first repair shop to which you went, there is little we can do to check out the situation. However, if you wish to lodge a complaint, you can contact the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce in Stroudsburg, which in effect operates as the local Better Business Bureau.

Q. — I would like to know how it is determined for someone to be eligible to receive welfare. How do we know that people on welfare really deserve to be receiving our tax dollars?

E.P., Stroudsburg

A. — The matter of checking on recipients of public assistance is a thorny question. Unlike other uses of the tax dollar, welfare is virtually immune from the "public right to know" legislation which opens most records to public inspection.

Whether a person deserves to be on welfare or really needs a number of other social welfare services is determined by the bureaucrats who administer whatever program is in question. The Pennsylvania Department of Public Welfare conducted public meetings briefly and we understand this practice has been evaluated and will be continued in the near future. However, at those meetings, individual cases are not discussed by the authorities.

The opportunity for the public to trace taxes through the welfare maze will have to await court action opening the records to public view or will have to be mandated by the legislature. There is a court challenge to the "confidential nature" of welfare records now underway in the state. It was pressed by a Philadelphia newspaper and may or may not change the law. That is up to the court.

Election analysis

By BOB GROFF
Record City Editor

STROUDSBURG — Tuesday's primary election will be a test of strength for the Monroe County Democratic and Republican parties. The test will pit the old lines of each party against splinter groups which are threatening to take over the vestiges of power from "the old guard."

The two races wherein the fights will lay are for the chairmanship of the parties.

On the Democratic side, a politically battered Stuart F. Pipher will again be trying to recapture the top party spot. He is opposed by W.C.G. (Bud) Peterson, the executive committee's choice for the job.

Pipher, 41, felt the first sting of party disfavor in the 1970 primary election when he was ousted from the chairmanship by the now Judge James R. Marsh.

The Tannersville resident was defeated by a two to one margin by Marsh, and at that time, local political observers expressed the opinion he was at the end of a comet-like ascendancy in local politics.

However, Pipher, a county commissioner from 1964-67, defied the odds and the party by seeking election as county commissioner last year.

Again, he was unsuccessful. He pulled the fewest votes of the four contenders.

Pipher, active in several local and county organizations, has little chance to capture the chairmanship of the party, according to political observers.

Peterson, 54, has the backing of the party's organization. He has been serving as the party's interim chairman since January when Marsh was given a judgeship.

According to observers, Peterson has the edge in the race simply because he has the party's "machine" behind him. However, the Pipher forces vehemently deny the existence of a "machine."

In the GOP race, two rather unspectacular candidates are vying for the post in much the same position as the Democrats: neither are incumbents, and only one has the alleged support of the party's executive committee.

Edward A. Katz, 53, is the official choice of the party. Katz supposedly has the backing of the party's leaders, however, those close to the Republican "brain trust" indicate that at least one high party officer holder is unalterably opposed.

Katz has been a long-time contributor to the party in both time and finances, and many observers seem to feel Katz received the nod this time because of a "debt" the party owes him.

His last venture into the political arena resulted in his defeat last year in a bid to capture the office of register and recorder.

Those close to the party feel that Katz has the ability to pull the party from the depths into which it sank during the reign of Dr. R. Frederick Jones, who "decided he would not seek reelection."

Observers indicate Jones would not have received party support if he had decided to run again, and that the executive committee was searching for a leader to help reorganize the split party.

During the campaign, Katz has primarily dwelled on his past contributions to the party.

His opponent, Dr. William C. Barry, of Mountainhome, has charged the party is deeply in debt and that it is run by a "clique."

His support is expected to come primarily from the Barrett Paradise area which has recently formed a splinter group of Republicans. The group shows signs of being well-organized and active, but observers doubt that it can generate much impact in other areas of the county.

Hundreds view Earth Fair spirits high despite rain

BY GAIL NEVINS

STROUDSBURG — It may have rained on their parade all day but it didn't seem to dampen the enthusiasm of those attending the Earth Fair festivities at the Stroud Township Municipal Building Saturday.

Throughout the day several hundred visitors passed through a maze of exhibits aimed at intriguing a variety of tastes and interests.

Information was the common denominator and it was dispensed over a wide range from auto-visual techniques to chalked slate boards. Printed information was available at almost every display and there was a constant hum of conversation and exchange.

Comments ranged from "there isn't anything here I don't already know" to "it ought to be a three day affair and reach more people."

District Forester John Bitzer thought the fair was "a great thing and it's too bad more people didn't see it." His Bureau of Forestry presented an intricate eight-piece exhibit, sent from Harrisburg, of large plexiglass cubes enclosing three-dimensional depictions of the department's activities.

The American Chemical Society table manned by several East Stroudsburg State College students drew sustained attention with their water, soap and detergent analyses and the kitchen was another popular spot where whole wheat pizzas, cold rice salad and whole grains were dispensed by Omega Natural Foods Market.

Just a few feet of space separated two contrasting ways of life. Quiet Valley Farm Museum's display of permanent, non-wasteful utensils and containers used a few generations ago differed vastly from the technical sophistication now used by the IBW Martin Incinerator Group's complex machinery involved in disposal of our modern mountains of refuse, their particular incinerator creates steam power while burning garbage.

Two other local companies, Hagan Manufacturing Co. and Packaging Corporation of America, also dealt with reuse of trash. They emphasized their recycling of various waste papers into reusable products. It is recycling which has been the main thrust of the fair's sponsoring organization, the Monroe County Environmental Action Group.

The MCEAG exhibit itself featured reuse of throwaway containers and alternative buying information aimed at reducing wasteful impact on the environment.

An exhibitor of non-polluting cleaners, Wulf Knausenverberger, when asked about the quality of his products, explained that he's really a full-time physicist with Bell Laboratories and only began selling his liquid cleaners because he's an environmentalist and thought they were good.

"Some people are in this business to make money," he commented. "My wife and I have probably sunk more money into it than we get out of it, but that's not our interest."

Several other topics of environmental interest were covered by other groups including overpopulation, different types of gardening, natural feeding of children, bee raising and bio-degradable garbage bags.

Joan Groff, Earth Fair chairman, observed that MCEAG was particularly happy about the appeal of the fair to all age groups. "We seem to have bridged a generation gap," she commented, "and the whole thing was a big success in general."

On Friday evening the group presented a slide presentation narrated by George Slabenow of IBW Martin Incinerator Group explaining their method of incineration and power generation and a talk by R. Emmet Doherty, Director of the Lehigh Valley Air Pollution Control District.

Ecology savers

Environmental activists provide the interested with ecology saving information through a series of displays designed to make the educational experience enjoyable at the Earth Fair, sponsored by the Monroe County Environmental Action Group.

Moths and federal project cited

McDade attacks Monroe problems

BUSHKILL — Congressman Joseph M. McDade said Saturday he has launched twin attacks on two of Monroe County's major problems — the gypsy moth and the uncertainty faced by property owners in the Delaware Water Gap National Park area.

Speaking to Monroe Young Republicans at the Fernwood, Bushkill, the Congressman said he has won a commitment of federal funds to control the gypsy moth threat.

At the same time, he said, he has introduced legislation to authorize an additional $31 million to purchase properties in the National Park area to end the uncertainty faced by the owners who have been living with the constant knowledge that their properties are to be taken.

Since the addition of Monroe County to McDade's 10th Congressional District, the Congressman said he has talked with representatives of the county's news media, governmental officials and residents. From all of this, he said, he learned that county residents consider the gypsy moth one of the county's major problems.

In Washington, McDade said, he has gained a pledge of matching federal funds to end the problem. He said he talked with Gov. Milton J. Shapp and Dr. Maurice Goddard of the State Department of Environmental Resources to urge them to expand the program to control the moth in Monroe by taking advantage of the federal funds he is able to gain.

"I have guaranteed that the Forest Service will have every penny it needs for research to find the answer to this terrible pest, and with that money, they have given me absolute assurances that they will work at this until they find the eventual answer," McDade said.

"But while we are waiting for that eventual answer, we have the problem of control now. I have a tacit understanding with the Department of Agriculture, and I'm working to see language I wrote included in a report from the Appropriations Committee, that will guarantee federal matching money for any state which will pursue a gypsy moth control program." There will be no lack of Federal matching dollars.

Turning to the problem of the National Park, McDade said: "I have also learned that there is a serious problem here among the people who own property in the National Recreation Area. For too many years they have lived under threat of condemnation, but no action has been taken to acquire these properties."

"When I went to the Department of Interior to ask about this delay, I learned that the authorization for funds to purchase these properties had expired, and the Department of Interior had not asked for a penny more."

"I had a long talk with the Secretary about that. I also wrote new legislation that would authorize the full amount, over $31 million, for the purchase of land."

"I can report to you tonight that the Park Service has reported favorably on that legislation. I do not want the program of purchasing the properties needed to drag on for another 10 years," McDade said.

Since all reported generally cowed students, Melnikoff conjectures the gum routine "as the height of defiance."

Texter found his blue jeans were also in demand. In one Russian store, he compared overcoats selling for $120 to ones for $20 here.

Such an expenditure could conceivably waste a month's pay, the students discovered. Those workers in scientific or technical fields are paid about $150 monthly.

While Texter found the people "sincere" (he was given an escort back to his hotel after getting lost in a subway), he points out Russians rarely smile in public.

One of the students' guides broke this rule, however, and was criticized by a taxi-driver. She told him she was happy because she was leading a group of American students. Her words, according to Miss Lewis, were:

"The Pennsylvanians taught me how to smile."

"Because it was really bad steak," laments Miss Lewis. Her first impression of Russia flashed her to America in the late 1940s, she says.

Sophomore Pam Miller recovered enough from her first impressions to conclude Americans are victims also of propaganda assaults. As did Conrad, who claims "I was under the impression there was a militiaman waiting to shoot you down for doing wrong."

Miss Lewis managed to spot a criminal act — litter, which doesn't adorn city streets. A Russian girl threw a gum wrapper away, risking a five rouble fine. "It was just a normal act," she says, "but it made me feel better to know Russians litter too."

Desired gum
The students were constantly besieged by their Russian counterparts for chewing gum. Begging is illegal, so a trinket of sorts is offered in exchange.

Russian entourage ready to return

By CONRAD GROVE
Pocono Record Reporter

SWIFTWATER — When Walter Melnikoff made his bid to the Pocono Mountain School Board to lead a student entourage to Russia, he contended it would make students "missionaries of democracy when they return."

Pocono Mountain students bear that out. But add they'd like to return in a few years.

Kathy Lewis puts it like this: "Kids our age aren't learning to think they're learning laws. And the young people don't even question this! How can they learn to think if they don't question?"

With five-day stays in Leningrad and Moscow, the group didn't come close to Siberia. In fact, Miss Lewis says she asked a Russian family about Siberia.

They laughed. "It was like an American family being asked about gangsters and tommyguns," she recalls. When she asked about Jewish persecution, however, people clammed up.

Carl Texter notes the group didn't make a deal in Soviet youths' thoughts on America. "By the time they're 15 or 16, there's no changing them. And the students they let talk to us are the ones they trust."

Trust questioned
How much the Russians trusted their students, however, is questionable. In the Hotel Ukraine in Moscow, for example, Russian students weren't allowed above the lobby.

Dave Conrad figures this was because "our standard of living is almost twice as high as theirs. They put on a big show for the tourists, but don't want the kids to see it."

The "show" apparently included steak at nearly every meal, Melnikoff says this didn't go over too well. Why?

Knicks gain playoff final of NBA; Rangers sweep Chicago in NHL

New York cops win 111-103

BOSTON (UPI) — Dave DeBusschere packed eight game-breaking points into the last two and a half minutes of the third quarter Sunday afternoon to power the New York Knicks to the National Basketball Assn. Eastern Conference championship with a 111-103 win over the Boston Celtics.

The victory gave New York a 4-1 edge in the conference championship series between the two clubs and enables the Knicks to face the Los Angeles Lakers, winners in the Western Conference, for the NBA championship.

The Knicks trailed by 14 points at the start of the game. They failed to score in the first 3:45 of play, finally getting two points on a layup by Bill Bradley.

But with Jerry Lucas contributing eight points, Phil Jackson adding a hook shot, a jumper and a free throw and Dean Meminger tossing in two jumpers the Knicks narrowed the gap to 27-23 at the end of the first period.

New York held a brief 41-40 lead in the first half on Earl Monroe's 20-foot jumper with 5:22 left in the second period. New York trailed 75-71 when DeBusschere sank in three straight foul shots, a layup, a short jumper and another free throw to lead New York on a 12-3 string that gave the Knicks an 83-78 advantage with 41 seconds left in the third period.

DeBusschere led New York with 24 points while Lucas added 23 and Walt Frazier scored 21.

The Celtics closed the gap to 96-93 with 5:20 left in the game as Nelson put away a steal and a free throw.

But DeBusschere sank three free throws, Lucas added a pair of charity tosses and Meminger scored on a steal to wrap the game up for New York, 103-93, with 1:30 remaining.

Petty ends slump; wins Staley 400

NORTH WILKESBORO, N.C. (UPI)—Richard Petty charged past Bobby Allison and Bobby Isaac late in the race Sunday to take the 12th annual Gwyn Staley 400 NASCAR grand national event and end a brief personal slump.

A record crowd of about 16,000 fans cheered on Allison's Junior Johnson-prepared Chevrolet, but despite the encouragement, Allison finished second to Plymouth pilot Petty.

Petty stormed into the lead for the first time 91 laps from the finish and led all but eight of the remaining circuits.

He finished less than a second in front of Allison's red and gold Chevrolet and only about half a lap in front of Isaac's third place Dodge.

For the lanky Randleman, N.C., ace, it was the third victory of the season and his first since the triumph at Richmond, Va., Feb. 27.

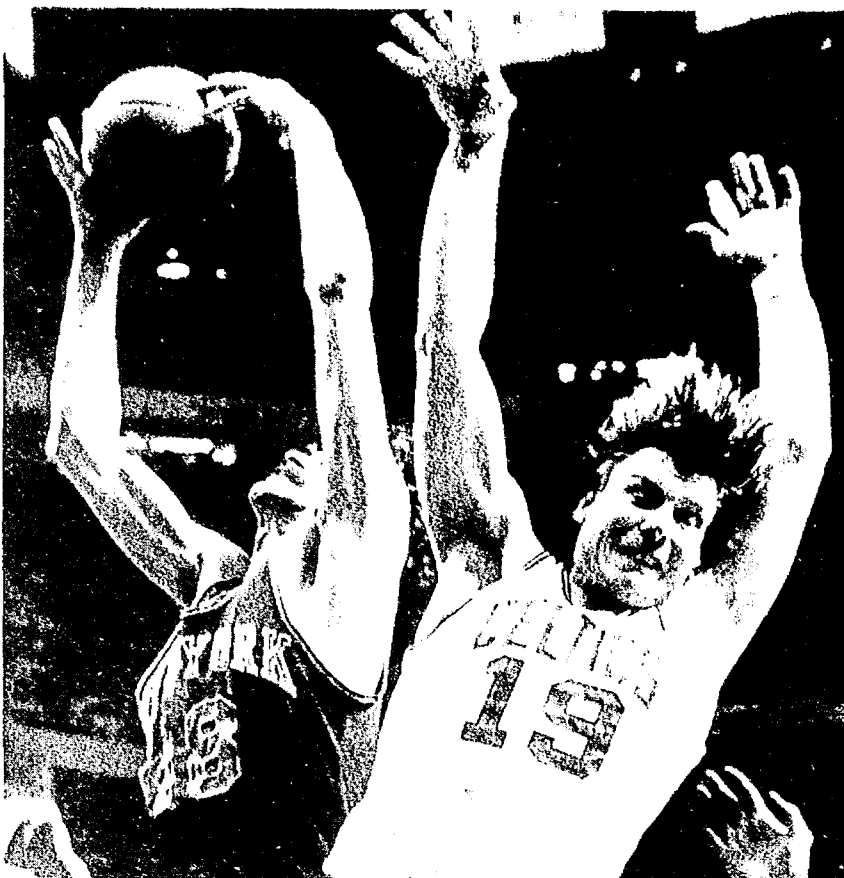

"It's been 56 days," said Petty following the race. "I don't think I've been counting or anything."

Petty collected $5,100 for the win, boosting him back into the lead among NASCAR money winners.

Petty has now won $60,245 during the season, putting him well ahead of Allison's $51,740.

Petty averaged 86.381 miles per hour over the five-eighths of a mile asphalt track in the race, slowed by five caution flags over a total of 45 laps.

Isaac, Petty and Allison were the only major contenders in the event. Isaac led nine times for 237 laps. Allison was in front on seven occasions for 79 laps while Petty led twice for 81 laps, including the final 25.

Don Nelson (19) of Boston grimaces as he is knocked out of the way by Phil Jackson (18) of New York while going up for rebound in first period Sunday.

Bettenhausen wins Trenton as new 'wings' fail in bids

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI)—Gary Bettenhausen, a back-up driver to Mark Donohue, roared to an easy record victory Sunday in his 1971 McLaren while mechanical problems made casualties of the highly-touted new aerodynamic machines in the $75,000 Trenton 200.

Bettenhausen, the son of the late racing great Tony Bettenhausen, was the second driver signed by the team of Donohue and Roger Penske when the latter pair decided to mount an effort for the United States Auto Club season.

The 30-year-old former star in the sprint car ranks drove his outdated McLaren with turbocharged Offenhauser engine to an average speed of 146.211 miles per hour, much faster than the previous mark of 139.591 set by Mario Andretti in 1969.

Bettenhausen, of Tinley Park, Ill., finished seven miles ahead of veteran Roger McCluskey of Tucson, Ariz., in an Offenhauser-powered Kuzma Gordon Johnson of Mt. Pleasant, Mich., was third. Defending national champion Joe Leonard was fourth, despite making several pit stops, and Jim Malloy was fifth.

The race—viewed by a national television audience and a record crowd of 23,501 at the Trenton Speedway—was a huge disappointment to the trio of Al Unser, Andretti and Leonard in their spanking new, V-winged "Parnellis" and to Bobby Unser, piloting a Dan Gurney-Olsonite Eagle.

The Trenton 200, the last USAC event prior to next month's running of the Indianapolis 500, had been considered a proving ground for the new machines and hopes for them had run high.

But they succumbed to mechanical failures as did several other cars as only 12 of the 24 cars in the starting field finished the race.

It was especially frustrating for Bobby Unser. Al's older brother since he had set a sizzling qualifying time of 165.289 mph, beating his own seven-month old track record of 161.120. But Bobby's day was finished on the 14th lap when flames began shooting from the Eagle.

Leonard Thompson, a rookie from North Myrtle Beach, S.C., who finished two strokes back at 13 under par 275.

In a three-way tie for third at 11 under 277 were Art Wall, Steve Melnyk and Rod Finseth, all of whom had a chance to catch Shaw.

Bert Yancey and Fred Marti were tied for fourth at 278 and Larry Hinson, a strong favorite going into the final round, finished at 279 along with Bert Greene.

Thompson was two strokes down at the par-five 17th hole when he ran in a 30-foot putt for an eagle. Shaw, however, was looking down his throat and his second shot had skinned just past the pin.

Ignoring the pressure exerted by Thompson's putt, Shaw sank his 14-foam for a matching eagle.

Two other challengers, Wall and Finseth, were on the 18th on the 49th lap and was never headed.

Bettenhausen said his car ran well "right from the start" and reported only one bad moment.

"That came when one car blew an engine in the early stages of the race. Bettenhausen was behind Leonard at the time as the two vied for third place."

"Leonard jumped on the brakes and I thought that was it," Bettenhausen said. "I still can't believe I missed him."

Bettenhausen shared the lead three, but Nicklaus was in the rough to the left. Nicklaus chipped out and waited while Mitchell putted. The putt almost tipped out but sank and the usually unemotional Mitchell leaped in the air.

Mitchell led by four strokes at the halfway mark. He complained then that sports writers did not give him recognition.

"I deserve more publicity," he said.

He set up the playoff himself on the 17th green when he missed a two-foot putt for a par. He took a bogey six there and Nicklaus tied it at eight under when he got his par.

Nicklaus' rounds were 70-71-67-72-280. Mitchell had 71-65-74-70-280.

Lee Trevino shot par 72 for a 282 which was good for third place and 12,000.

Tied for fourth at 284, four under, were four pros — Romero Blancas, with a 67, Bruce Crampton, 71; Jerry Heard and Dave Hill, both with 72s.

Arnold Palmer shot a 71 which put him in a tie at 289 with Bob Rosburg (72) and Dave Stockton (71).

Billy Casper, whose caddy left him after an argument on the 10th hole shot 70 for 293.

Hubert Green and Gardner Dickinson, who shared the first round lead at 68, could not stay in contention.

Green shot a final 72 for 290 and Dickinson had a 75 for 295, seven over par at La Costa Country Club. Par is 36-36-72.

The difference between first and second place was $14,000. Nicklaus got $19,000 for second. He already led the year's money winners with a total of $131,000.

Mitchell, who quit school in the 10th grade and went to work in a pro shop when he was 15, was 26th on the PGA money list last year with $75,891. He had won $47,720 up until the money list last year with $75,891. He had won $47,720 up until the money list last year with $75,891.

Rousseau leads 6-2 victory

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bobby Rousseau, taking part in the 100th playoff game of his career, scored two goals and two assists Sunday night to power the New York Rangers to a 6-2 victory over Chicago and a sweep of their Stanley Cup semi-final series from the Black Hawks.

Rod Gilbert added a goal and three assists and Vic Hadfield collected one goal and two assists as the Rangers completed the first four-game playoff sweep in their history. It also marked the first time in 22 years that New York has climbed as far as the finals and the first time since 1940, the last year the club won the Cup, that the Rangers have so much as clinched playoff series on their home ice.

New York must now await the outcome of the Boston-St. Louis series to determine its opponents in the finals. The Bruins lead the set 3-0.

Phil Goyette, a 38-year-old veteran called out of retirement to help in the Cup quest, and 20-year-old rookie Gene Carr, scoreless in his previous 32 games, got the other Ranger goals.

Rousseau put the Rangers ahead for good at 15:32 of the first period.

Sorry friends, we can't help get tickets for the April 27 Congressional Medal of Honor Society's dinner honoring Norton Simon Inc. Chairman David Mahoney. Hottest ticket since early "No, No, Nanette"; been sold out a month. Bob Hope's jetting in to lead the parade of fun at the Waldorf.

Octogenarian Lowell Thomas is the sporty fellow: wears a black and gold brocade dinner jacket. Saw him in the Plaza the other gaudy night. Looked like liberation from the back ... "The Godfather" has settled down to a neat $1 million a day at its nationwide box offices. Way ahead of "Gone With the Wind"

Your Horoscope

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)
— Under present influences, your creative urges are strong, may impel you to do something unusual and outstanding. Make the most of this fine period!
April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)
— If your only contribution to this day is to keep it from getting out of hand and from getting the things done that MUST be done, you can be proud of yourself. Just don't worry.
May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)
— Tasks you may not like will be responsibilities anyway. So? Make the cheerful best of them. However, avoid hasty decisions which you and others could regret.
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)
— Make a list of "musts" before you embark on day's splendid activity program. You may have essentials mixed in with the unimportant. There will NOT be time for both.
July 24 to August 23 (Leo)
— Take each task in turn, not dallying overlong on some, being too hasty in others. You may run into some odd situations. Study well before acting.
August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)
— Avoid any inclination toward lethargy since your planetary influences are fine for accomplishment. But YOU must cooperate, of course.
September 24 to October 23 (Libra)
— Have faith in your objectives and confidence in your methods — providing that you have deliberated and made sure just WHAT those objectives and methods should be.
October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio)
— Handling your own or others' affairs may present new or increased problems. Be ready for changes. Don't make unnecessary ones yourself, but do accept others which seem desirable.
November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)
— Rugged ambition is day's need. AND the fortitude not to break your stride hesitatingly when obstacles or new problems appear. Use that bright mind of yours.
December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)
— Streamline wherever it will accelerate progress, but don't by-pass those "little" details which can be SO important. A so-so day, awaiting your clever management.
January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius)
— Here is a day suited to your special skills and artistry. However, work matters, domestic concerns and personal relationships will demand more than usual care.
February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)
— Avoid a tendency to haste or you may make needless errors. But avoid useless delays. Follow that old middle course.
YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a lively imagination, remarkable intuition and a gift for sensing the needs of others — even before they themselves are aware of their lacks. Many come to you for advice and help, which you give generously. And your total involvement with your fellowman makes you an outstanding physician, nurse or worker in humanitarian causes. Aside from this altruism, you have a distinct flair for the dramatic and could make an eminent career for yourself as an actor, writer, playwright or trial lawyer. Music also appeals to you, but probably more as an avocation than a lifework. Birthdate of: Anthony Trollope, English novelist; Shirley MacLaine, film star.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 8 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 8, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Which man would you vote for?
The man in the top picture promises to spend your tax dollars wisely. But spends his campaign dollars on a very fancy convertible.
With a price tag that makes it one of the most expensive convertibles you can buy.
His opponent promises to spend your tax dollars wisely. But see how he spends his campaign dollars.
On a Volkswagen Convertible. Resplendent with a hard-fitted top. A warranty and four free diagnostic check-ups that cover you for 24 months or 24,000 miles.
And a price tag that makes it one of the least expensive convertibles you can buy.
So maybe this year you'll find a politician who'll do what few politicians ever do:
Keep his promises before he's elected.
